A new master chief

Hey this is my first halo fan fic so don't get mad

Alec Spartan-227 sat in the pelican polishing his shotgun. He had spent many years in the UNSC and had finally reached Chief. He preferred to be with the action instead of sitting in a chair planning the actions. The A.I. was named Kyla, she was named that. He served next to master chief in trying to stop the second halo, but obviously failed. He followed him in Operation: "Regret" but was pulled out cause of an injury. He received his purple heart for that wound. He then returned for there final mission before master chief joined the forerunner ship Operation: "Gravemind". There he found out that master chief failed and they were shipped back to earth. Alec was then in lead of a whole squadron of his own kind, Spartans. On earth the elite joined the UNSC for the Fight. There we join our Hero of this story, from when he was a chief to when he is master chief on the pelican, in his POV.

I laid there waiting for my ship SMGs in my hands swords on my belt watching for grunts jackals and brutes. Kyla started to talk to me but I was concentrating on when my air lift was going to get here. I heard some stirring and turned on my heals saying "rolling" waiting for the other part, whether elite or Spartan. "Thunder" said an elite voice as he walked in with a Brute plasma Rifle, which he obviously picked up.

"See you got a reward, Jackson," I said, each Elite had a mark on there Shoulder so they could tell there name. "Or did you just steal it from a camp again?"

"I would love to tell you but the air lift is here," Said Jackson, as the scared pelican came in. They both made noise and there squads appeared. They got aboard and the pilot began to clap.

"A good job captains, our mission was a success." Said the pilot,
"That will slow down those brutes."

"Ya so _Master Chief _can go in and take them out." I said, waving my shotgun around "I don't see why he is still Master Chief, I mean he failed in stopping the second Halo, and left his A.I. behind for them to find out our secrets. The warthog, The Scorpion, and The Pelican, we had to modify them all cause they found out."

"ya well don't get happy, I got to drop you on the front line. There's ammo right behind me so take what you need then get ready to roll out."

I rolled my eyes but they couldn't see me. I took ammo and a bubble grenade and got ready at the exit of the pelican. All I could hear was firing of mortars and screams of terror from Marines and Elite. I heard the pelican guns firing as we get close to the ground. I stopped everyone for a pre-battle speech.

"Ok soldiers, we are about to get into the hell zone and probably going to die for Earths protection. So you better be ready with bubble grenades and ammo." I said looking around, "Now lets go, go ,go ,go ,go!"
